H. Welling in the House of Representatives, June 7, 1938:

"Brigham Young fostered and encouraged as one of the auxiliary organizations of the church the Women's Relief Society. With the main purpose of that great organizationits charitable and educational work—I am not now concerned. These women were advised as one of their minor activities to store wheat, and it is of this rather unusual activity I wish to speak.

It has given me pleasure to write that given met lower and to make the field of its immediately as one of the renewed allowed the speak.

"In the early days of Utah's history and in the humble beginning of the Relief Society, these women gleaned the harvest fields in order that no precious head of grain should be lost. Wheat was so precious fo the pioneers that it was used as a medium of exchange. It was the standard of value by which other commodities were measured. They had little or no other currency. My own mother has related to me more than once her association with and cheerful participation in this work of gleaning the precious yellow grain.
